LUCCA BOTTA VERY ILL

Caraso to Bookh New York From

Rio Jameiro Bust New York From Rio Jameiro Bust October.
Lucca Botto the Hainn tenor of the Metropolitan Opera House, was reported yesterday to be meriously ill at his home in the apartment house at Fifty-fifth street and Broadway. He has been confined to his bed for the past three weeks.
No statement could be given by the attending physician as te when he would be well, but it was expected that he would recover in time to fill his engagements at the opera before the end of this season.

Enrico Caruso cabled yesterday from Rio de Janeiro to M. Gatti-Cassasa, gen-emi manager of the Metropolitan, that he will reach New York about the end of October, travelling on the steamer Sags. It is expected that he will sing on the opening night of the new season, which will begin on November 12. The opera has not been selected.

Me need the freedom of delineative action, of facial expression, of that subtler utterance which conveys inself through bodily pose and movement. It was easy to imagine this artist depicting the will sensuousness and cruel cunning of Belone. She is to sing Marguerite in "Faust" to-morrow night. Mary Garden once excited interest in this role. Miss Craft may disclose eriginality also.

The performance yesterday was generally smooth, though without distinction except in so far as the soprane was concerned. Girolamo Ingar was quite southerned and the submerged under the pallid wose of weeping Alfredo. Joseph Royer was a stalwart Germont and colebrated Provence in a burly style which commanded an encore for the dear old tune. The chorus ang fairly well and the orchestra had far less trouble than it did on the previous evening in "La Gioconda."
